6. Attached, for your information, is a recent redistribution of the SPS ceiling allocation. We have found that a certain degree of flexibility is necessary in using the SPS authorizations. In our senior recruitment endeavors, we often are able to interest personnel for a given number of years of association with our efforts. This will usually involve a leave of absence from the applicant's parent Command; in such instances, the SPS authorization is an ideal mechanism to cover a reserve appointment. It then becomes necessary to make adjustments to the internal SPS ceiling allocation and to request Salary and Wage Division to approve the establishment of an official SPS position on the appropriate staffing complement.

7. We have, however, identified positions which are earmarked as SPS jobs. Attached, for your information, are the titles of the positions, listed under the appropriate offices; they are subject to change as the right individual is found.

8. We have submitted new staffing complements for OEL and OSI. Salary and Wage Division is currently surveying these requests and, again, while Salary and Wage will not officially designate SPS positions, they will identify and earmark such positions under the authorized SPS ceiling of each Office.
